Joyce Walker Brownbag

Joyce Walker is a graduate of the program in Writing Studies at the University of Illinois Champaign-Urbana (2001). She is currently an Associate Professor in the Department of English Studies at Illinois State University, and the Director of the Writing Program there. One of her primary research, teaching, and administrative interests is in the application of Cultural-Historical Activity Theory and Rhetorical Genre Studies approaches to writing pedagogy. The conversation at the second spring CWS brownbag will focus on her response to Clay Spinuzzi’s claim (CCC Conference 2016) that CHAT is not an appropriate approach for writing pedagogy, but rather is primarily an approach for looking at literate activity in the world. We’ll be looking at some of the pedagogies and resources designed for the Writing Program at ISU, and we’ll discuss whether a pedagogy that uses CHAT and genre studies as its foundation can be successful (or is even worth attempting). Interested participants can learn more about the Writing Program at ISU by visiting www.isuwriting.com.